- The book EAST JERUSALEM, PALESTINE was a part of the exhibition "Participatory observation and documentary methods in Edit Palestine" by the artist Brynhild Bye-Tiller. In her work she investigates questions related to methods of collecting and processing documentary material, cultural stereotypes and movement in space and surface in storytelling photographic expressions. Palestinian Balqees Rjoub wrote free and poetic texts to each of Brynhild Bye-Tiller's photographs from East Jerusalem.

19 photographs and 19 texts written in Arabic and translated to English. All of the material were put together in an assemblage on the wall and in a book. The book was launched during the exhibition opening on Saturday 26 October 2019. The public were also invited to participate in the book. Through a text-based workshop called "Keep on writing" all kinds of texts were welcome. Both short and long reflections, personal thoughts or descriptions of East Jerusalem. More than 30 texts became a part of the exhibition and a redacted version of the book.
